FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

March 17, 2015

The Atlanta Photojournalism Seminar's (APS) board of directors is pleased to announce the dates and location for the 2015 Seminar. The two-day event will take place Nov. 13-14, 2015, at the Hilton Atlanta Northeast (<http://bit.ly/1KZEoxA>), and will feature photography and video workshops as well as distinguished speakers from the photojournalism field.

This will be the first year APS, now in its 43rd year, will hold the event at the Hilton Atlanta Northeast, a move that brings cheaper rooms for attendees and a host of nearby dining and entertainment options. Rooms for those registering for the Seminar will cost $74, a $20 savings from last year.

"This new location is perfect for us," said APS President Kevin Liles. "There are lots of places nearby that attendees can easily walk or catch a cab to, which was not the case at our previous location."

This year's Seminar also features a new structure for workshops. Video Day (or V-Day) will be combined with Friday photo workshops, both being held on Friday, though on separate tracks. Saturday's program of featured speakers will remain unchanged. The shortening of the Seminar from three days to two was made in an effort to keep costs down and to allow more people to make the trip to Atlanta.

"We really wanted to give attendees the most bang for their buck, and we think that this new format will allow attendees to do that," Liles said.

Faculty members for the 2015 Seminar will be announced in the coming months and will be announced on the Seminar's website (photojournalism.org) and via social media (@atlantaseminar).

The Atlanta Photojournalism Seminar, America's longest continuously operating photojournalism conference, was founded in 1973 by a group of photojournalists representing newspapers, magazines and wire services. It promotes the highest standards of photojournalism through an annual educational conference and a photography contest judged by working photographers.
